

Dear Miss Waterhouse,

I am writing to kindly ask you not to extend the school day to 6pm. While we understand that learning is important, finishing school later would not be good for the children or the teachers. Please consider the following reasons before making your decision.

Firstly, children are already very tired by the end of the school day. Adding more hours would make us even more exhausted and unable to concentrate. Imagine trying to learn maths when your brain feels like it's about to fall asleep! Would you want us to be too tired to enjoy learning?

Secondly, teachers already have so much to do. If the school day is longer, they will have even more lessons to plan and mark. That would be incredibly stressful for them! Teachers are superheroes, but even superheroes need a break. Don't you think they deserve time to rest too?

Finally, children need time after school to relax, play, and spend time with their families. If we stay at school until 6pm, we won't have time to do our hobbies or see our loved ones. That would be a disaster! Wouldn't you agree that happy children make better learners?

I hope you will think carefully about this decision. We believe that keeping the school day as it is will help everyone stay happy, healthy, and ready to learn.

Yours sincerely,

Year 3
